Charles Drew worked at medical institutions

He did many blood transfusions

Drew was significant for his blood banks

His career, it really soared

And he did most of it during the second world war

During this period, he had blood galore

He has character traits, a good personality

And gave others others who needed blood hospitality

He made the first large scale blood bank in the United States of America

It was the original first, not a replica

Charles was called the father of storing blood

If he kept any more, there would probably be a flood

Yeah, he did all the transfusions

He did blood storage, that's the conclusion

I don't think most could do it better than him

To him, their career must be very dim

Not much more to say about Charles Drew

Except that there were very few who could get through his number one spot

Because during World War 2 there weren't many doctors that did transfusions, so it would be hard to
